lives everywhere the book traces the evolution of the women's human rights movement through an examination of its key issues, debates, and practical interventions in international law and policy arenas. This includes efforts to develop global gender equality norms via the UN Women's Convention, framing violence against women as a human rights issue, addressing gender-based crimes in conflict situations, including women in conflict resolution and post-conflict reconstruction, and challenging new forms of militarism. It highlights the gendered human rights dimensions of widening inequalities in a context of neo-liberal globalisation, develops human rights responses to anti-feminist fundamentalist movements with a focus on reproductive and sexual rights, and ultimately women's human rights reaffirms a commitment to critically reinterpreted universal human rights principles and demonstrates the vital role that bottom-up transnational movements play in making them a reality in women's lives. Women's Global Health and Human Rights serves as an overview of the challenges faced by women in different regions of the world, ideal as a tool for both professionals and students. This book discusses the similarities and differences in health and human rights challenges that are faced by women globally. Best practices and success stories are also included in this timely and important text. international human rights national law grass roots activism and theology this volume explores the acute problems that contemporary fundamentalist movements pose for women s equality and liberty rights africa with its mix of statute custom and religion is at the centre of the debate about law and its impact on gender relations this is because of the centrality of the gender question and its impact on the cultural relativism debate within human rights it is therefore important to examine critically the role of law broadly constructed in african societies the book focuses on women s experiences in the family this is because the lives of women continue to be lived out largely in the private domain where the right to privacy is used to conceal unequal treatment of women which is justified by invoking custom and tradition the book shows how law and its interpretation is used to disenfranchise women resulting in their being deprived of land and other property which they may have helped to accumulate it also considers issues of violence within the home reproductive rights and examines the issue of female genital cutting the role of women in development is explored as is their participation in politics and the ngo sector a major theme of the book is a consideration of the linkages of constitutional and international human rights norms with local values this is done using feminist tools of analysis the book considers the provisions of the protocol to the african charter on human and people s rights on the rights of women which was adopted by the african union in july 2003 using her experience of living under apartheid and witnessing its downfall and the subsequent creation of new governments in south africa the author examines and compares gender inequality in societies undergoing political and economic transformation by applying this process of legal transformation as a paradigm the author applies this model to afghanistan these two societies serve as counterpoints through which the book engages in a nuanced and novel way with the many broader issues that flow from the attempts in newly democratic societies to give effect to the promise of gender equality developing the idea of conditional interdependence the book suggests a new approach based on the communitarian values which underpin newly democratic societies and would allow women s rights to gain momentum and reap greater benefits broad in its thematic approach the book generates challenging and complex questions about the achievement of gender equality it will be of interest to academics interested in gender and human rights international and comparative law
